New and Unusual Introductions for 1933 . . .

GARDENING after all is one of the oldest and most satisfying of vocations. Some folks make a business of it, with others it is a pastime—a game which they are in not only for the fun of it, but for a material prize that rewards a little labor—a perfect rose, a beautiful shrub, a healthy border or appetizing fruit. And the prize is such that one needs to share it with others for real enjoyment. It is humanly impossible to keep it to one's self—the ivy climbs over the high wall, the rose perfumes the path of the passerby, the beauty of the place is contagious.

Flower lovers who like to keep abreast of the development of a new rose, shrub, perennial or fruit can well consider the following varieties which Green's take pleasure in offering. You can buy them with confidence. Each of these new varieties has outstanding merit. The fact that they are new commends them to the amateur gardener, not only because of the pride experienced in ownership, but the delight in demonstrating to one's friends that here after all is a garden with not only the old and tried beauties, but something new and intriguing.
